THE APPRENTICE'S LEAP.

A Story of London Bride.

Sunset over London, on a fine summer evening in the days of "good Queen Bess;" tall, quaint old houses, with peaked roofs and countless gables, standing up on every side, and the Thames lying in the midst like a broad sheet of gold, save where it was flecked by the dark shadow of London bridge, then a regular street, with houses along each side of it.

Just above the middle arch rose a house larger than the rest—that of Sir William Hewet, cloth-worker, and Burgess of the city of London. The sunset made a glory upon the windows of the old mansion, and lighted up the balcony, on which Sir William's baby daughter was crowing and clapping her tiny hands with glee at the sight of it, and stole into the work-room, where the youngest apprentice, Edward Osborne, was beguiling his task by singing the ballad of "Brave Lord Willoughby," which was as popular in that age as "Glory Hallelujah" is in this.

"Ah, if I could but have the chance of doing such a deed as that!" murmured the boy as he ended.

"Well, well, my brave lad," answered the cheery voice of old Sir William, who had entered the room unperceived, "you're on the right road to it by being diligent at your work. Keep to that meanwhile, and never fear but the chance of doing great deeds will come all in good time."

Little did either speaker or hearer guess how soon and in what way those words were to come true. Scarcely had the old knight left the room when the boy was startled by a sudden shriek from the balcony overhead, and by something white flashing past the window into the depth below. Sir William Hewet's only child had leaped out of her nurse's arms, and fallen headlong into the river.

The faint splash was instantly answered by a much louder one, and the distracted household, as they rushed in a body to the fatal balcony, saw Edward Osborne's brown curly head far down the shining stream, shooting straight as an arrow toward the tiny white speck that floated a little way beyond him.

"He has her!"

"No!"

"Yes!"

"No, he's gone past. Stay! he's turning again."

"Hurrah! he's got her at last. Thank God!"

The anxious father's straining eyes were already too dim to see anything clearly; but the joyous shout of his keen-eyed serving-men told him that all was well, and in another moment he was hurrying toward the scene of action as fast as his feet could carry him.

But the peril was not over yet. Good swimmer as he was, the furious swirl of the current, together with the weight of his own wet clothes and those of the child, was fearful odds against the brave apprentice. Twice his head dipped below the surface, and all seemed over; but he still held the resented infant above the water with one hand, while struggling for life with the other.

"Courage, my hearty!" said a hoarse voice beside him. "Hold up just another minute and all's well."

At the same moment a boat pulled by two sturdy watermen, who had put off from the shore on the first alarm, came sweeping up to the sinking boy. A strong hand caught the child from his failing grasp, while in another instant he was seized and dragged into the boat after her, just as the last remnant of his overtired strength gave way.

"Git her head round, Tom," said one of the boatmen to his comrade, "and pull with a will, for that's the youngster's father running this way, or I'm much mistaken."

Scarcely had the boat touched the wharf on her return, when old Hewet sprang into her like a madman, and finding his child unhurt, flung his arms round the neck of the half drowned apprentice.

"God bless thee, my son!" cried he, fervently. "Let them never call thee a boy again, for few men would have dared as much."

"Let them call him a hero," said a voice from behind.

The boy looked up with a start. Beside him stood the handsomest man he had ever seen, in a rich court dress, looking down upon him with grave kindly eyes. It was Sir Walter Raleigh, famous even then as one of the greatest men whom England had ever produced, but destined to become more famous still as the colonizer of Virginia.

Ten years from that day there was a great merry-making in the old house on London Bridge, and Sir William Hewet; still brisk and cheery as ever, though his hair was now white as snow, sat at the head of his own table, amid a circle of guests whose names are in every history of England. At his right hand was his tall daughter's newly-made husband—a tall fine looking young man, whose clear bright eyes faced that brilliant assemblage as boldly as they had looked down into the foaming waters of the Thames years before.

"This is the man to whom I have given my girl, fair sirs," said the old knight. "Many a rich man and many a grandee have asked me for her; but I always said, 'Let the best man win.'"

"And so he has," cried Sir Walter Raleigh, grasping Osborne's hand, "And the fairest lass in London may be proud to bear his name, for I'll warrant it will be famous yet."

Raleigh spoke truly. A month later, the ex-apprentice was Sir Edward Osborne yet a few years and he had become Sheriff; and when the Spanish Armada came, foremost among the defenders of England was Osborne, Lord Mayor of London, from whom the English Dukes of Leeds are still proud to trace their descent.—David Kerr, in Harper's Young People.

The broom drill is the new device for raising church funds, which in the East is rapidly supplanting the old plan of a homily and a hat. Oyster snappers, fairs and picnics, strawberry and peach festivals and the like will go into the back-ground for a time at least. A broom drill at Harlem is thus described: Sixteen young ladies, in pure white, with jaunty red caps, crimson collars, and girdles of the same tint, went through the regular regimental evolutions and the practice of arms with as much precision and far more grace than half the crack military corps of the country. Instead of guns they carried brooms, but this, while lending a comical phase to the performance did not detract from its general success. To a lively marching air played upon the piano the sixteen young sisters in arms, rather in brooms, kept the audience agog with excitement for an hour or more, and their ready and unanimous execution of orders won them round after round of applause. The sixteen had their Captain, who seemed well up in the manual of arms, and altogether they made the prettiest and most innocent set of Amazons that have ever been banded together on the mimic stage for the purpose of gathering the dollars of Humanity for a good cause. The exhibition furnished the onlookers a spectacle at once chaste, graceful and attractive, and with such charm as to draw shekels from many manly pockets.

The Brooklyn Eagle perpetrates this outrage: "This man is a temperance lecturer. He seems sleepy. It is 1 o'clock in the morning. Why doesn't he take off his clothes and go to bed? Perhaps he is paralyzed. Two friends have just left him. One of them is sitting on the front stoop and the other is clinging to a tree box. They belong to the Total Brotherhood of Ebenezer. Will the hand that fed Elijah be stretched forth to protect them from the night air? Very likely; a policeman is coming round the corner, and the station-house is not far off."

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVE., MARCH 3, 1882.

WILLIAM E. CHANDLER is again spoken of for a cabinet position.

NEWS of the lower country floods is more distressing than ever.

THE Democrats of Nicholas county will select their candidates for County Judge, Sheriff, Clerk, Attorney, Assessor, Surveyor, Coroner and Jailer at a primary election to be held on Saturday, April 15th.

ALF BURNETT, the West Virginia detective, has written another letter to the Enquirer, reiterating his theory of the Ashland murder and his belief in the innocence of Craft and Neal, though he offers nothing in addition to his former statement, which has been mainly disproved.

SAYS the Courier-Journal: The Jacob-McHenry-Gollady-Munday-Nall-Kinney-Boland party consists of five Colonels, one Major, one Captain and enough privates to constitute a corporal's guard. It is pre-eminently a war party, and is ready to tackle anything from a drove of sheep to a wind mill.

THE Yeoman makes a center shot when it says: "The men who did the fighting and made the power of the Republican party a possibility, are left to scuffle and eke out a living as they may, while those who occupied bomb-proof positions in the war, and never saw service except as home guards or carpet knights, fill the fat offices at the disposal of the administration. When the spectacle is seen of men wearing the scars of battle, like Judge Sneed or Gen. Fry, returning from Washington repulsed in their applications and made to stand aside for others with no such records, we feel authorized to call the Commercial's attention to the fact that it had better take the beam out of its own party's eye before it lends its Herculean energies to the McHenry-Jacob party in its effort to reform the Democratic party.

THE following is an analysis of the financial condition of the Government for the month of February: The reduction in the public debt for February is $9,783,511, and for the eight months ending on the 28th ult., $97,869,443, which is equal to a monthly reduction during the current fiscal year of nearly $12,225. The reduction for the last month is $2,000,000 below that for February, 1881; but the aggregate reduction for the eight months of the current fiscal year exceeds that for the corresponding months of last year by $35,653,000. Compared with March 1, 1881, the aggregate of the public debt, deducting cash in the treasury, shows a reduction of $139,286,787. This sum represents the measure of reduction in the interest-bearing debt for the twelve calendar months ending with Tuesday, which amount is $30,000,000 in excess of the reduction for the twelve calendar months ending February 28, 1881. The available cash balance is $155,147,339, an increase of $11,225,000 compared with February 1st. The current liabilities on account of debt on which the interest has ceased was reduced $4,000,000 during the month, the aggregate of this debt now outstanding including interest, being less than $66,000,000. The Treasurer's statement of liabilities and assets shows an increase for the month in gold coin and gold bullion of $8,600,000, the amount of this fund now being nearly $174,000,000.

The extraordinary expenditures during the month, which do not include interest on the debt, were nearly $18,000,000, of which amount about $9,000,000 were on account of pensions.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVE., MARCH 3, 1882.

As chronicler of all the news,
We're called upon to say,
A deal of shooting's going on
In Maysville every day.
It's not confined to older ones,
But, very little lads
Do pop away, ad libitum,
At one another's tads.

CAPT. WATT SHEDD has taken charge of the office of the Morning Mail.

THERE is no small-pox at Augusta, and no fear is felt that the disease will appear again.

MR. H. P. McILVANE, has removed from Mayslick to his farm below this city, bought recently from Mr. J. H. Humlong.

THERE will be an excursion train run from Flemingsburg here on next Wednesday, to the matinee of Julia A. Hunt in "Florinel."

A FEW days ago, John Kain working on the railroad, near Carlisle, dropped a rail upon his foot and crushed it so badly partial amputation was necessary.

MRS. E. BARK's residence in East Maysville is being improved inside and out, under the artist hand of Mr. A. B. Greenwood. The painting is in his best style.

MESSRS. GEORGE COX & SON received ten dray loads of merchandise yesterday. In the lot was a large and handsome line of carpets, the best, probably, the firm has ever offered in Maysville.

A SUPPER and rag-ball party will be given by the ladies of the fifth ward, in Amazon Hall, for the benefit of the new Methodist Church in Chester, on next Friday evening, March 10th. Music by Fifth Ward Cornet Band.

THERE seems to be a good deal of uncertainty in the land as to the appearance of the coming spring bonnet. Whether it will be as small as a butcher's pound of beefsteak or as large as a cook stove is what the women are fretting to find out.

MR. PAT. CLAIR, one of our good citizens, will remove with his family to Grand Crossings, Scott county, Ky., to take charge of a tobacco farm. He is an experienced farmer, and his friends there will find him a desirable acquisition to their community.

A TEACHER in one of the Maysville public schools recently saw one of his pupils idle, and after quoting a few words from Solomon, said: "Satan finds work for idle hands to do; come here and I'll set you an example." Some of the larger pupils smiled, but the teacher never knew what about.

The following marriage licenses have been issued in Brown county, Ohio, since our last report:

W. L. Davis and F. Pask.
George M. Soule and Lou Vane.
Stewart R. Rounds and Irene Hutton.
Albert Bichmond and Sallie Shofstall.
C. W. Merker and Jessie Radnes.
Edwin E. Brown and George Donly.
Jessie Alsop and Sarah Alsop.
David Fortenberry and Martha Mathers.
James P. Boothby and Lizzie Laycock.
Jacob Gopperton and Mary Jane Kirk.
Joseph A. Bivans and Mary E. Jordon.

MISS JULIA A. HUNT, who assumes the title role in "Florinel," is undoubtedly one of the most gifted young actresses now before the public. She combines equally the qualities of mirth, pathos and power, and in addition thereto exhibits in her singing a voice of musical culture and exquisite sweetness. She took the Philadelphians by storm in her recent appearances, and, the critics, proverbially difficult to please, vied with each other in portraying and extolling her many excellencies. Seldom has such unanimity of sentiment prevailed.

THAT time has long gone by when the public resorted to the cross road store and tavern to exchange news. In the old time a hand bill posted in such locations would meet the eyes of the substantial citizens—farmer or business man—of the neighborhood, and sufficient publicity to sales of real or personal property was thus given. Now it is not so. People no longer get their news at second hand, and hand bills posted at such resorts do not reach a title of the people it is desired to notify. This is the age of newspapers. Everybody that has the means now takes one or more newspapers, giving preference, as he properly understands his business interests, to his county paper, which brings him intelligence of the world immediately about him. He no longer idles his time at the cross roads, but gets his newspapers from his post office and in the quiet of his own home learns the news and reads the advertisements. Handbills are doubtless useful in their way—they serve to attract the attention of the casual customer—but to reach the settled population and the thrifty citizen there is no means so cheap and effectual as the neat advertisement in the widely circulated county newspaper.

AT the annual meeting of the A. O. U. W. of Kentucky held at Louisville, a few days ago, the following grand officers were elected:

Grand Master Workman—L. P. Young, Jr., Lexington.
Grand Foreman—W. P. McKee, Covington.
Grand Overseer—Isaac Marks Goocetown.
Grand Recorder—H. K. Millard, Lexington.
Grand Receiver—D. C. Kennedy, Lindlow.
Grand Guide—J. W. Speach, Louisville.
Grand Watchman—G. W. Harris, Ashland.
Grand Trustee—J. H. McHenry, Owensboro, term three years; W. H. Tebbs, Covington, one year, unexpired term.

Representatives to Supreme Lodge—A. R. Mullins, Covington; A. M. Sea, Louisville; Hon. G. R. Heller, Paris.

The per capita tax was fixed at fifty cents semi-annually, and it was determined to allow the instituting officer all of the institution fees except a reserve sufficient to pay for supplies. The salary of the Grand Recorder was fixed at $500 and that of the Grand receiver at $50. The Grand Lodge will meet biennially in future, the next meeting to be February 1884.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. W. B. Phister left on the noon train to-day for Parkersburg, W. Va., where he is called by the sudden and dangerous illness of his brother, Dr. M. H. Phister.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Wallingford, are visiting at Greenup, Ky.

Mr. Thomas Donovan, the gentlemanly foreman of the Clark County Democrat, is visiting his parents in this city.

Miss Anna Latham, one of Mayslick's fairest daughters, is the guest of Mr. Porter Melvaine, of Charleston Bottom.

MCINTYRE & HEATH's Great Southern Minstrels will appear at the opera house next Thursday evening the 9th inst., in one of their best programmes. The New Orleans Picayune says of this company: A large audience greeted McIntyre & Heath's great Southern Minstrels at the Grand Opera House last night, and the performance justified the attendance. The minstrel business is pretty much all alike, but the entertainment last night was far above the average. The songs are new and healthful, and some of the voices are extremely good. The house was kept in a continual roar of laughter from the rise of the curtain until the finale. The negro business is especially good. The California Quartette was the hit of the evening. Their imitations of the Scotch bagpipe and calliope were perfect, illustrating the wonderful execution of the human voice when properly trained.

THE bar-keepers of Hopkinsville, Ky., have formed an association known as the "Bar-keepers' Protective Union," obligating themselves from selling spirituous, venous or malt liquors on Sunday, under a penalty of $50 to the association, and to be reported to the grand jury, so that he may be held responsible for a violation of the law.

Conkling Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3rd, 1882.—The nomination of Roscoe Conkling to be an Associate Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, was confirmed by a vote of thirty-nine to twelve. Four Republicans voted against him—Hoar, Morrill, Hawley and Dawes. Senator Sherman dodged a vote. It is reported that Mr. Conkling will decline the position.

Brokeen Levees.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3, 1882.—A gap of nearly one hundred feet is washed out in the levee at Carson's Landing, causing the inundation of a large territory and the destruction of much property. The levees are also broken at Bolivar and Mound Landing. Arkansas City is almost under water. The losses will be heavy and there will be much suffering among the people.

Attempted Assassination of Queen Victoria.

NEW YORK, March 3, 1882.—A London despatch says an attempt was made yesterday to assassinate the Queen as she was leaving Windsor Station in her carriage for the castle. A man standing at the entrance of the depot pointed a pistol at the carriage and fired. He was immediately seized by the crowd and was only saved from violence by the police. He gave his name as Roderick McLean, and is regarded as insane. The Queen was unaware of the attempt upon her life until she arrived at the castle. McLean is twenty-seven years old and is a grocer's clerk. No political significance is attached to the outrage in any quarter.

ABERDEEN ITEMS.

David Davis has moved in the house vacated by Wm. Riggs.

John Howard, of Urbana, Ohio, called upon superintendent McFarland, last night. He was accompanied by Joseph Montgomery, of Decatur. They were on their way to Kentucky, to purchase some fine blooded horses.

Dr R. L. Heaton, is happy! Now, what do you think it is. It is not a baby, it is something better. He has just received his pension. He gets his pay, dating from November 10, 1864. He enlisted in the 7th Ohio, O. V. I. and served as First Lieutenant; he went in October 18, 1861, and was never absent a day from his regiment until mustered out. Some one says the doctor has a new suit, but we guess he has just brushed up his old clothes. He can now afford a good suit. May he live long and prosper.

We spent last Wednesday evening, in company with Dr Heaton and our old friend John Howard of Urbana, Ohio. They were soldiers together in the same regiment. We listened with much pleasure to their narratives of trials, battles and the life of a soldier.

Our scholars close their six month's to-day. The attendance is large. There is one month more. Two of our teachers will leave us then, as they are going to engage in other business.

Our temperance society is in full blast. New members every night. The society will do much good; they have a wide field.

We learn that we are soon to have another hotel. Glad to hear it. Let the good work go on.

Mrs Minnie Gilmore, of Maysville, visited our schools, yesterday, she says she will move in if she can get a house for which she was looking.

Miss Rhea, of Georgetown, was here to-day, she came last night and will return this evening. Miss Jennie DeVore will accompany her home. Miss De will celebrate her—birthday while gone. Don't say how much that dash stands for, she said I must not tell.

A party of young folks from town were at Enon, last night, attending church.

Messrs. C. Bradford, Sam True and George Barkley have returned from Cincinnati.

Persons having friends visiting them or any items that they would like to have published, will please hand them to Mr. McFarland, and they will receive prompt attention.

What to teach Our Daughters.
The following advice is worth many readings:

Teach them self-reliance.
Teach them to make bread.
Teach them not to foot up store bills.
Teach them how to cook a good meal.
Teach them to wear thick, shoes.
Bring them up in the way they should go.
Teach them how to make their own dresses.
Teach them that a dollar is only one hundred cents.
Teach them how to darn stockings and sew on buttons.
Teach them every day, dry, hard, practical sense.

Give them a good, substantial common school education.

Teach them to wear calico dresses, and do it like queens.
Teach them to say "no" and mean it; or "yes" and stick to it.

Teach them to have nothing to do with intemperate young men.

Teach them that a good, rosy rump is worth fifty consumptives.

Teach them the mysteries of the kitchen, dining room and the parlor.

Teach them to regard the morals and not the money of their suitors.

Teach them that the more one lives within his income, the more he will save.

Teach them that the farther one lives beyond his income, the nearer he is to the poor house.

Reply upon it, that upon your teaching depends, in a measure, the weal or woe of their after life.

Teach them the accomplishments—music, painting and drawing—if you have time and money to do it with.

Teach them that God made them in his own image, and that no amount of tight lacing will improve the model.

An Eloquent Passage.

It cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble cast up by the ocean of Eternity to float a moment upon its waves, and sink into nothingness. Else, why these high and glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts, forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and clouds come over us with beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off to leave us to muse on their loveliness? Why is it that stars which hold their festival around the midnight throne, are set above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And finally, why is it that the bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view and taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We were born for a higher destiny than earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread out before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful begins that pass before us like shadows, will stay forever in our presence.—G. D. Prentice.

What Men Love.

What men love is the comforts of the married state, not the person who provides them—wifely duties rather than the wife. A man enjoys his home. He likes the cheery fireside, the dressing gown and slippers, the bright tea-urn, and the brighter eyes behind it. He likes to see boys and girls growing up around him, bearing his name and inheriting his qualities. He likes to have his clothes laid ready to his hand, stockings in their integrity, buttons firm in their places, meals pleasant, prompt, yet frugal. He likes a servant such as money cannot hire—attentive, affectionate, spontaneous, devoted and trustworthy. He likes very much the greatest comforts for the smallest outlay; and certainly he likes to be loved. His love runs in the current of his likings, and is speedily distinguishable from them.

H. C. Cobb, late City Clerk at Carthage, Mo., was arrested Tuesday, charged with setting fire to the City Hall, thereby destroying the city records, which, it is believed, showed some crooked transactions on his part.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers
And Producers.

THE ONLY PRACTICAL
AND THE CHEAPEST

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray tilted ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, addling, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.
Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete, 65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 18 doz. Case with Fillers complete, 55 Cents.

15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 string 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $3.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.

The 18 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, without mailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,
